Bishop of Brooklyn

Dedication

To you—our parents—we are dedicating our yearbook, the summary of our four exciting and very fruitful years at college. This book represents our combined attempt to thank you for the constant effort and quiet encouragement you offered us at all times. That was your part in our college life. In our yearbook, we are expressing our participation in college life—our curricular and extra-curricular achievements. We have tried to recreate the highlights, the most important moments of these last four years so that they will always live in our memory.

Higher education is that priceless privilege which helps us to become a more complete person and one better equipped to take our place in life. The beacon of truth has burned steadily ever brighter before our eyes during these last four years, until we feel that we have come to a greater love of God, a more understanding love of our fellow man, and a truer appreciation of the beautiful.

We promise we will make you proud of us, and this is the most gratifying reward we can give to you in return for the four years you have given to us, years that have done so much to enrich and shape our future lives.

Looking Back . . .

On the last four years, we can trace besides the ordinary pattern of any class' college career, our growth from children to adults. College should do just this, and in the measure to which it did it for us, we have succeeded.

We began wide-eyed and impressed with Orientation. Girls who seemed to handle responsibility with startling efficiency herded us with clock-like precision from one meeting to another—to luncheons, teas, conferences and classes. It seemed incredible that in a short time we might be called upon to play the roles of Madame Chairman, President or hostess. In the middle of our freshman year our responsibility began when we elected our first class officers. Helen Connell completed the year as President with Lillian Fox as Councilor.

It was a whole year of orientation actually. We were more familiar with the Rec Room than, perhaps, with any place else in the school. It was the established meeting place and there we linded to our hearts' content, evoking sighs for days gone by from book-laden upper classmen. Despite our generally light-hearted approach to life, we were forced to grow in individual as well as class responsibility. The cut system finally became clear and, with papers and research assignments coming due, the sense of responsibility gradually deepened.

Our growth and expansion continued during sophomore year. We had a sense of belonging now, a certain savoir faire that made us arbiters of taste and fashion in some small way. The girl who had the courage to sport the short hair-do, knee-socks and a made-over musker-bag impressed her classmates with the awkward charm being advocated by the fashion magazines. Skirts were longer, too, and the girl who could manage the stairs at all after ligament-pulling modern dancing found herself tripping over a drastically lowered hem.

Sophomore year marks the introduction into the government of the school, and Helen Connell was chosen by the class of '50 to assume the duties of Treasurer of the U.A. Ginny Jacobs and Joan McAneny were President and Councilor, respectively, of the class. Sophomores took to the stage that year, too; the Chapel Players' Great Big Doorstep and Antigone gave many a '50 fledgling the chance to spread her wings. And under the chairmanship of Rose Lopapa the sophs gave an impressive comparison of New York fifty years ago and today in G.A.

On the serious side, the spring of sophomore year, two and a half years after the end of the war, found the world rumbling with rumors of another and more terrible war. Black and red headlines on tabloids and sensational sheets screamed rumors that the cold war was speedily boiling over into a hot one. A new draft was put into effect, this time calling our younger rather than older brothers. And all this time, in the quiet of our chapel, more and more serious faces turned toward Mary, more and more beads slipped through slim young fingers as we prayed for the future.

Third year is often chosen as the favorite year by college graduates. We found ample explanation for this in our junior year. We were upper classmen, but the thesis, comprehensive and departure were not so imminent as to dampen our spirits. The sense of belonging had deepened into a recognition of our importance and potentialities. But the college girl preoccupation with football games, formals, parties and week-ending at men's colleges was still there. The year began with our class handling the Orientation that had so impressed us two years before. We were Junior Sisters now and we took pride in the glowing admiration in those freshmen's eyes. It was a responsibility to represent St. Joseph's even to one person, a duty we could not ignore and which we like to think we discharged as best we could. In fact, we began to be impressed with our freshmen shortly after their entrance and we gloried in their individual and class accomplishments.

Our own class meetings were presided over by Angela Shillitani and Mary Loos, while Mary Bennett was Secretary of the U.A. One of the first social events of the season was the Charity Ball. Lilian Fox was Chairman of the dance which adopted the Oriental motif very attractively. Mary Jane McCarthy, who managed Junior Week, gave us the Junior Banquet and the Junior-Senior theatre party and the week came to a glorious end with the Junior Prom under Anne Churchill's management.

This was the year, too, when we began to take philosophy in earnest. Conversations over sandwiches and milk shakes, which had usually shunned anything more serious than clothes and men, changed emphasis now. More often, we found ourselves thrashing out the elemental problems—God's existence, the existence of the soul, an after-life. We were reading The Seven Storey Mountain and trying to understand the profound Human Destiny. There was a constant awareness of the development of our minds—not laterally, taking in more facts, but vertically, going deeper and higher into every new bit of knowledge.

With our last year in college we found ourselves responsible for some part of almost every event, club, entertainment and committee. Jean Clune and Mary Loos were President and Vice-President of the U.A. while our own class meetings were presided over by Margaret Breen. Gertrude Shea was Chairman of the Religion Committee which sponsored the Charity Ball with Cathy McCaffrey as Chairman. Parents' Day was an event to remember due to Alice Bambrick's capable management, and Anne Serena represented St. Joseph's and New York State at the Congress of American Industry. Christmas week revolved around our wonderful Senior Ball at the Roosevelt, for which the bouquets go to Lilian Fox. Angela Shillitani made the Religion Committee Bridge and Fashion Show a memorable springtime event and Mary Lou Conlon managed Senior Week in June. It was a glorious finish to four years we shall never forget.

With Baccalaureate, Formal Class Day and Commencement we passed from the status of college girl to completely responsible individual. It was, despite our preparation for it, a quick change. One June morning we awoke and found ourselves suddenly unattached, free to choose what we should do in life, what we should accomplish or whether we should accomplish anything. It was a feeling of mixed emotions. There was a longing and a lonesomeness and at the same time an excitement and joyous anticipation. Maybe the world was our oyster; maybe it was not; but we would try to realize the potentialities cultivated in us for four years. Before we began, we could not resist looking back . . .

ADZOOKS! Imagine receiving a letter from the Dean." So ran our thoughts, one day last summer, when the authorities-that-be officially made it known that "We are Juniors." Thus, we were now made the Big Sisters to Freshmen, all our own.

Arranged by chairman Mary Kruse and committee, the Junior Tea during Orientation Week was our official welcome to the Freshmen, as we started off third year comparing summers and delightedly renewing friendships over cookies and lemon peels.

For at least the first few weeks, few Juniors wore gloves while traveling to and from college,—we flashed our hard-won rings deliberately, and oh, so proudly!

Academically, our programs extended quite a typical challenge, and we strove mightily to meet it, only briefly staggering, of course, at titles such as "Epistemology."

November found us eyeing the Seniors with fresh discernment,—writing their personal histories was just one aspect of producing FOOTPRINTS '50. The Staff wrote and sketched, erased and cut out, 'till editor Agnes Maher saw deadlines in her sleep. Putting it to press marked for us the end of an era, and the quiet beginning of our coming of age.

We took advantage, as often as possible, of the several opportunities to focus our social lives on SJC affairs,—Juniors and their b.f's cogitated seriously at the First Friday classes, cheered, and danced afterwards, at Varsity games and Chapel Players Productions.

Then in February, we knew we had arrived—an entire week devoted to just us! The Mass and Communion Breakfast, banquet, theatre party and general festive atmosphere, largely produced by the hard work of Bernadette Foley and sundry committees, effected a most beautiful and unforgettable Junior Week—the one '51 will always remember.

The climax of this year that seemed a climax in itself, was of course, our Prom. We glowed, sparkled and were gay, dancing blithely, positive this was the loveliest promenade of our separate and collective lives—thanks to another efficient committee, under Joan McCarthy.

With Commencement, farewells to our Senior friends, and setting forth of our tassels, we the Class of '51 wistfully said s'long to our cherished Junior Year, looking ahead to an even dearer Seniority.

IX thoroughly one hundred tassels in the second quarter; add quizzes and sprinkle with gloom. Bake in activity, then cool for innumerable happy hours scholastically and socially; there you will find perfection . . . alias . . . Sophomorehood.

We move into our second year with a fury. The class of '52 invades Dramatics, with Georgianna Clifford and Jeanette Mazzuka . . . Athletics, with Joan Brancaccio, . . . Publicity and Religion Committees, with great numbers—just name it, we're there, en masse. We're also there when the "weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth" section of Sophomore life begins, but dark hints and veiled threats of a language comprehension find our hearts stout, and initial work in a major field prove us more the intellectuals than we thought.

But the class of the red and black has many sides, only one of them scholastic. As Sophs, we divided ourselves into: electors . . . when Doris Rogers became our very noteworthy president and Peggy O'Brien our councilman . . . voters . . . when our own Pat Egan was elected Treasurer of the Undergraduate Association . . . real school rooters . . . at every outside activity. Whenever you turned at the Charity Ball another Soph danced by. In the Parents' Day entertainment, we weren't backward in coming forward with our talent, and the Religion Committee Fashion Show gave us a chance to model, which opportunity we accepted with excitement and grace.

Our big event of the year came and went all too quickly . . . Class Day . . . under the guiding hand of Joanne McGrath. Sophomore Mass . . . breakfast . . . fashions fit for the Champs Elysées . . . dinner and the show . . . looking around and seeing your class . . . it was a wonderful climax of an equally wonderful year.

We look forward to the day when we will wear those rings for which we were measured, but necessarily with a tinge of regret that this year has passed. Interspersed with "problems" that only a Sophomore can know, it nevertheless remains one of our best memories . . . a time of fellowship with each other and the school . . . a time of bustling activity, and a sense of "getting there."

We turned our tassels, way back when, and knew it meant another year; that it would be so hectic and busy we never imagined, but that we'll always remember it, we do not doubt.

HE Freshman Class of '49 will now go on record with a few bright comments—and if you'll please excuse us, just a few a trifle off the record.

It all began one lovely morning when we entered St. Joseph's. A student, perhaps a SENIOR, ushered us into a large, bright looking room we heard someone call a "wreck." But we weren't proud, "rec" or no wreck, it looked pretty nice—we decided to stay awhile. Besides, here we found company, and you know how misery loves it.

We lived through Orientation Week, met five dozen heads of five dozen departments and various other committees. We learned how to cut, when to cut, but mostly why not to cut. We viewed the school, the campus, the library. We also found ourselves with a few new friends. I guess we were finally oriented, when we climaxed the week at the Junior Tea where we met our Junior Sisters. It was quite a week—exciting, breath-taking, completely different.

But the dream quickly faded. The glamour became basic reality with the small intestines of a frog; the delta method and ten typewritten pages fondly designated in collegiate language as a "term" paper. Some such custom as blue books came into our lives to haunt us and label us as Freshmen with required courses.

We skipped merrily along however, always with a sharp lookout for the numerous, interesting activities surrounding us. There was a dramatic society and a few of the Sarah Bernhards became immediate members. But then why should the talent of Robin Bent, Jane Kavanaugh, Lillian Johnson and many others lie buried in the confines of the Locker Room?

Well, just look at this. Here we are Freshmen becoming nostalgic and remembering. It's all here and straight from the heart. This is the saga of the Freshmen who used to be you and used to be us. May we now introduce ourselves? The Sophomore Class of St. Joseph's College.

Student Government

THE COUNCIL

"What is the significance of the gold and white tassels?" This question could be asked by an alert observer of any General Assembly who had noticed that here and there, amid the rows of black robed and capped figures, gleamed a pretty gold and white tassel. The immediate answer would be that they are worn by the members of the Student Council.

Here at St. Joseph's, the students themselves are responsible for carrying out every function of a student's life. The members of the Council are elected by the undergraduates to administer the rules of the student body, and to care for the general welfare of the students

Therefore, the business of the Council meetings which take place each Monday under the earnest and intelligent guidance of Jean Clune, President of the U.A., include such items as: appropriations and approval of budgets under the scrutiny of our responsible Treasurer, Pat Egan; plans for improving conditions in the kitchen always heartily endorsed by the Junior Councillor, Connie Pompa; appointments of various chairmen; and money-making schemes for financing the year's venture.

By thus acting for the interests of all the undergraduates, the Council works diligently to fulfill the authority that has been invested in them.

THE EXAMINATION COMMITTEE

Chairman: ANGELA SHILLITANI

We are very proud, and justly so, of the Honor System at St. Joseph's. All examinations and quizzes are administered by the students themselves, and the Examination Committee was formed to see that regulations are enforced and infractions penalized. The Committee acts in the capacity of a jury, determining from evidence presented the innocence or guilt of a particular case. It also makes rules for efficiency in the functioning of the system, and administers the Honor System Pledge which each girl signs upon entering the college.

Secretary: IRENE DONOHUE

Four girls are elected from each Freshman class to serve on the Committee throughout her college career. It requires fortitude, discretion and integrity to fulfill the responsibilities of this position.

THE EXTRA-CURRICULAR COMMITTEE

Chairman: REMIGIA FOY

With so many activities functioning at St. Joseph's, a committee had to be formed to unite them. This Extra-Curricular Committee keeps a record of each girl's extra-curricular points and her non-credit activities. They hear appeals for absences from activity meetings and take attendance at Athletic Association classes.

This year the Committee is trying to set up a master program of extra-curricular activities so that there will be fewer conflicting meetings. This should do away with cries of "I have six meetings at five o'clock!"

Secretary: AGNES MAHER

The three members from each class, elected in their Freshman year and serving until Graduation, feel that their work is necessary for the efficient running of the social side of college life.

THE ATTENDANCE COMMITTEE

Chairman: NICOLETTA LOPOPOLO

"Appeals for absences and lateness during the month of October will be heard after G.A. in Room 301." This announcement indicates that student government includes attendance, a matter which has been delegated to student administration by the faculty. As a result, the students have a great responsibility to themselves and to the Committee to appeal only those cuts which are legal.

Composed of three members from each class, the Attendance Committee judges the validity of the appeals. It is a position which demands fairness, objectivity and caution. The success of this system at St. Joseph's is due in great part to the responsibility taken by the Attendance Committee.

THE RELIGION COMMITTEE

Chairman: GERTRUDE SHEA

Secretary: EILEEN MALLOY

Treasurer: ANN CLANCY

The program of student government at St. Joseph's extends to the most important side of a girl's life, her religious activities. The Religion Committee provides for a schedule that gives each girl many opportunities to become a more Christ-like personality and a better-informed Catholic.

Daily Mass and Holy Hour, the hourly prayers and the monthly Nocturnal Adorations and First Friday Forums are some of the ways by which spiritual energy is directed.

Three important social affairs are held each year to insure the financial support necessary for the Committee's own activities as well as their annual contribution to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and other charities. The Charity Ball in October was a social success under the able direction of Cathy McCaffrey. March brought the Bridge and Fashion Show, an enjoyable evening which realized the hopes and plans of Angela Shillitani and her committee. Finally, the Communion Breakfast, held later in the Spring, was a pleasant event for the faculty, parents and girls, with thanks going to Helen Seckendorf for her admirable work as chairman.

With the ready cooperation of all the Religion Committee members, Gert Shea finds that the program of the Committee is not so formidable as it looks; but it takes the support of the whole student body to make it a success.

Activities

STUDENT PERSONNEL

Miss Rosemary Glynn presides over that mysterious little room adjacent to 201. Formally, it is known as the Office of Student Personnel but, more frequently, it is referred to as the second home of many Saint Joseph-ites.

The work of this department is three-fold: student counseling, vocational guidance, and advice to those students matriculating under the C Plan. Miss Glynn's task comprises notifying the girl who is in danger of falling below average in her studies and, with the aid of the student and faculty, to discover the reasons for her failing.

Oftentimes, this office has been the source of encouragement, both spiritual and material, to the temporarily disheartened. Part time employment has provided an adequate solution to many problems.

The scope of the C Plan has been widely extended due to the Committee on Recommendations for Cadet Training working in cooperation with Miss Glynn. A more efficient work-study program has been arranged insuring greater benefits for a good number of upper classmen.

It has been said that the success of the college student may best be judged by her interest in events over and above those required by the curriculum. If this is so, then we would say that the Discussion club should prove highly successful.

These Tuesday evening sessions are characterized by the leisurely manner in which they are conducted. Father Dillon (a true moderator in every sense of the word), takes the first step by introducing the topic in a brief treatise. The debate question and answer period which follow demonstrates the provocateness of the subject. The constructive criticism voiced by the girls attending and the occasional "refereeing" by Father usually provides a satisfactory solution to the problem at hand.

The Discussion Club has well nigh become an institution at the college. Since the issues chosen are especially pertinent to the role played by each individual student at Saint Joseph, all the members of the undergraduate association find this club of special interest.

THE DISCUSSION CLUB

THE NFCCS

DOROTHY BECK

The NFCCS or National Federation of Catholic Colleges began a very active existence at St. Joseph's about two years ago. Joining delegates from Catholic Colleges all over the country, our delegates entered this organization after becoming interested in its wide-spread activity. Their purpose is to act as rep-representatives of the student body and in particular representatives of the student council. In addition to unifying the Catholic Colleges throughout the country, the main purpose of the NFCCS is to foster Catholic Ideals.

IRENE DONOHUE

Chairman: JOAN CRANE

This club meets once a month, when some twenty-five members gather together for informal discussions of their many projects. At any meeting, you may see the chairman and some of the members busily preparing bandages for the cancer patients at St. Rose of Lima Hospital, or sewing rag-rolls for the children at Angel Guardian Home. The most important event of the year is the Christmas basket collection and distribution. This year, seven families were helped in their temporal requirements by the club. Our school Samaritans owe a big debt to the girls in the Social Service club.

THE SOCIAL SERVICE CLUB

THE MATHEMATICS CLUB

Chairman: LORRAINE LEVERONE
Co-Chairman: DOLORES DUFFY

St. Joseph's Math Club was initiated four years ago by Miss Harvey, a former Math professor. Fostered by Miss Byrne, it has established for itself a thriving existence. Meetings, held once a month, consist of prepared talks on a subject decided upon by the group, and in keeping with the theme chosen for the term. The preparation for meetings are arranged by the members with guest speakers occasionally invited. The theme of this term's work, the relation of Math to various subjects: Physics, Philosophy, Education, remains proof of the extensive importance of Math in a liberal arts education.

THE BIOLOGY CLUB

Chairman: MARY ROSSMAN

Two years ago, the Biology Club was in its embryonic stage. Now, a well established club at St. Joseph's, Sister Mary Beatrice acts as its advisor. Meetings held every two weeks are presided over by Mary Rossman and are planned by twos—the first meeting being devoted to work on a particular project chosen by the group and the second including a full report on the finished project. This year the club went on an expedition to the Palisades. As a result of its success, the students plan to make frequent field trips in the future. The latest project is a proposed exhibition on the Palisades expedition.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CLUB

Chairman: DOLORES TOMAO
Secretary: RITA DORGLER

The main discussion evolves around national and international problems. Members strive to incite active participation in current affairs with facts on hand. They seek to discern economic, sociological and political aspects with the question in mind, "will it lead to socialism?" With Catholic principles remaining the guide, intelligent citizenry may be the outcome. Bi-monthly meetings call for presentation of a specific plan followed by discussion for possible solutions to the problem.

THE FRENCH CLUB

President: MARGARET CATALANO
Secretary: THERESA ROSSMAN

Le Cercle Français has been a favorite around these parts since 1936. Highlight of this year was the Chopin program given in the French General Assembly with student recitals and motion picture films enlivening the presentation.

Those monthly teas are a huge success! Moderators, Miss Mallia and Mr. Lessard, provide guides to the many trends of thought while Mlle. Catalano maintains order . . . even the minutes are in French! Members are adept at playing their own version of "Ghost," a must on these students' list is their pride and joy, "Flâneur." One feels thoroughly Parisienne at the end of a meeting.

THE SPANISH CLUB

President: FLORENCE SERGIO
Secretary: ALICE GONZALEZ

The Spanish Club has a membership of about twenty girls. Meetings are held the second Monday of every month, followed by refreshments in the Red Room. After the December meeting the club had a dinner consisting of Spanish food cooked by a genuine Spanish chef with the table setting and place cards designed by the girls.

Regular meetings had been suspended temporarily in order that the girls might practice for the Spanish G.A. presented April 3. The title of the play chosen was "The Young Boy Who Married a Good Woman." The Club planned a brief introduction and summary in English and distributed programs to the entire student body at Assembly. The girls worked hard to make their production a success and they hope the student body enjoyed their play!

THE GERMAN CLUB

Chairman: MONICA KLEIBER

By singing traditional folk and classical tunes, the German Club attains their end . . . a deeper understanding of the German culture and language. Meetings, held once a month provide for this contact with German ways. In addition, letters from German correspondents to the girls are read and answered in German. Once a year, the members watch a German movie; this year "Die Fledermaus" presented in technicolor showed various aspects of German life. Miss Trunz, the moderator, provides entertainment and delightful social functions to add to the success of the club.

THE COUNCIL OF DEBATE

Chairman: MARIE GAMBINO
Secretary: DORIS CUNNINGHAM

Resolved: basic non-agricultural industries be analyzed this year. Procedure: affirmative and negative. After the main points are presented, the briefs are then prepared by the deliverer of the argument. When preparations of the briefs finish, the practice debates are begun. The club meets each week aiming for a development of a correct process of analysis of a question. Arranging arguments clearly and facing opposition logically, all the girls endeavor to answer effectively.

THE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

President: ANN MARIE DUGGAN

Out of touch with the world? The twenty-five members of the International Relations Club aren't. They're ready to tackle any world shaking problem at their meetings. After preparing a paper on Aid to Yugoslavia, a lively debate on Recognition of China's Communist Government followed. Topics the girls lined up were numerous and covered the pros and cons of Truman's Point-four Program and the explosive subject of the Atomic Bomb. A speaker from the United Nations gave luster to one of their meetings. Not much opportunity for a student to stay in her Ivory Tower with IRC in action!

STUDENT SPEAKS

Chairman: GRACE FALLON
Secretary: PEGGY O'BRIEN

This activity has been formed to make the student more articulate in matters of the Catholic religion. The main work, then, is the study of this religion and its prominent aspects in modern society. Topics and discussions have covered a wide field: Catholic Action, The Legion of Mary and The Grail have all been reported on fully to the members. Other considerations, such as "what makes a Protestant home" and "what makes a Catholic home," have been analyzed by the twelve members and their moderator, Father Leonard. The future project of Student Speaks will be a testing ground for their previous activities. They hope to have discussions at the various local Newman Clubs—an ambitious plan, indeed.

THE MERCIER CIRCLE

President: MARIE GAMBINO
Secretary: MARY LOUISE CONLON

This distinguished group has for its members the intelligencia. It discusses the current problems of the day. The main topic this year was "Man in His Relation to Society," which was broken down and discussed from various angles. They meet regularly—every month on a Tuesday evening. The girls are most earnest in their endeavor to learn more philosophy—very important in this day and age. It is quite an honor to be elected to Mercier, since one must have a "B" average in all philosophy courses as well as a "B" scholastic rating.

DELTA EPSILON SIGMA

President:
SISTER JOSEPH IMMACULATE
Secretary:
MARY O'KEEFE MCGAHAN

"It is for the wise man to set things in order" is the sentence of Aristotle's that provides this National Scholastic Honor Society with both the first three initials that name the Society, and the motto of its activities. This year, members on the Faculty and the Undergraduate body are co-operating with Catholic Action Groups, especially the Bay Ridge Catholic Action. Nor content with seeking wisdom, the members of Delta Epsilon Sigma are anxious to spread it freely to others! This year we boast of the following girls admitted to Delta: Anne Serena, Margaret Breen, Marie May, Mary Bennett, Dorothy Beck.

LORIA

Editor: MARIE MAY

The literary magazine of the College features poetry, articles, fiction and W'bitlings. Published three times a year, the members aim to give aspiring Willa Cather's ample opportunity to develop talent. Always seeking new talent, Loria encourages even the Freshmen. An art staff provides sketches while the business staff attends to the dollar and cents situation. Two dreaded d's, Deadline and Dummy, haunt the staff. Result—a magazine of which Saint Joseph's College can well be proud.

THE CHILD STUDY CLUB

Chairman: MARIE PRIZZI

Familiar locker room talk: "See you at the Child Study Forum." A Tuesday night special, the members of this club find the "Rec" a comfortable setting. After bringing the meeting to order, Marie Prizzi announces the topic and introduces the speaker; everything from nail biting to convulsions enters the discussion. A question and answer period provides lively interest where guest lecturers and four department faculty members are kept busy. Everyone agrees that the subjects remain of practical value to all of the undergraduates.

THE PRE-SCHOOL

We start them young at Saint Joseph's College! We go from sliding ponds to proms. The nursery and kindergarten are integrated parts of the college life. On pleasant days, Kathy and Francis enjoy the nursery's playground under the expert supervision of the nuns and the Child Study majors.

These sophisticates from the kindergarten have provided Miss Foley with many humorous stories—even visits to the farm. The morning four year old class and the five year group in the afternoon provide constant activity through these walls, with Janet and Nestor trying so hard to—rest! Principles of love of God and neighbor, friendship and discipline are inculcated in these youngsters. Add favorite sights, Betsy and Charlie "singing" at daily Benediction.

THE

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Chairman: JEAN McCAVE
Secretary: HELEN DONAHOE

This recently organized group has attracted many junior psychologists. An extremely interesting schedule was arranged by a special panel (sometimes called "The Big Three"). Proposed visits from prominent men in the field of psychology won instant approval. Experiments enlightened many proceedings and especially well received was Father Kelly's lie detector test. Moderator Charles Strassburger helps to maintain order when the discussion becomes too heated. "Have you been psychoanalyzed lately?"

THE ART CLUB

Chairman: JOANNE McGRATH

As another medium for creative talents, the Art Club has many pleasant hours. The members have eagerly achieved work both in the reports and posters they supply. Guiding their gifted hands across a drawing, their success is recognized by all the student body. Watercolors, clay and pastels, all characterize their achievements. Bi-monthly meetings under their capable chairman have shown the willing spirit of these girls as they lend their talents to publicize many school activities. Without this club, St. Joseph's would indeed be lacking one of the most important activities in the school.

THE CHOIR

Chairman: FRANCES WILDE

One of the most active organizations at Saint Joseph's, the Choir has always maintained a high standard. Under the direction of Father D'Ecclesiis, nineteen members meet every Tuesday for a two hour session. The girls not only give up this time but many extra hours as well. They help to rouse the Christmas spirit at Christmas G.A. even singing carols of European countries. The Choir looks almost cherubic in their "choir boy outfits"—black gown, white surplice, eton collar, red tie. At Thursday Vespers, Parents Day, first Fridays and Commencement week, our Choir may be heard solemnly adding to all services.

THE LITERARY SOCIETY

Chairman: MARGARET BREEN

Heard those arguments in the "rec" on odd Wednesday evenings? Don't be alarmed. It's only the "Lit" Society trying to interpret modern poetry. The first victim was Ezra Pound followed by a discussion on the works of T. S. Eliot. When references get too obscure, members refer to their recondite moderator, Sister Joseph Immaculate. Social Science, Math and Chemistry Majors as well as English Majors are represented. Only requirement: a burning desire to "hash over" what's been read. When the heat of the argument becomes too intense, members revive on their own refreshments from the college kitchen. Jean Clune's gingerbread won instant acclaim. A highly-probable hypothesis: Next year's topic will be "Betty Crocker"!

THE GLEE CLUB

Chairman: MARIE GUARRACINI

"Music—for appreciation and enjoyment." Every member of the Glee Club echoes this sentiment.

Our serenaders, under the capable direction of Father Gennaro D'Ecclesiis, aspire for perfection. Judging by performance, they achieve nothing less! The April Musicale brought their dominant keynote, versatility to the fore. The air still hung heavy with the slow throbbing rhythm of "Sweet Little Jesus Boy," when the chorus burst into the buoyant strains of "My Johann." To look for the essence of an organization like the Glee Club on nights like these, however, is futile. One may find it behind the scenes in the Music Room of a Thursday afternoon. Here is the working Glee Club!

THE CHAPEL PLAYERS

President: JOAN WHALEN

"On with the show!" might well be a watchword for the Chapel Players who always have at least one play in production. This year, with the professional skill of their new coach, Miss Jill Miller, managing director of the Putnam County Playhouse, to guide them, the society has done a variety of plays.

They opened with Thornton Wilder's "The Happy Journey" last Fall at a General Assembly, and then in December, the major production, "The Young and the Fair" displayed their talents for stage design as well as acting with a three-in-one set, planned by Lillian Fox. An on-the-road show followed as they presenred Dickens' "Christmas Carol" at the Home for the Blind. Then, "Noah's Flood," a miracle play from the Middle Ages was given at a G.A. in March.

But no matter what the play—when the curtain goes up you'll see them on stage, enjoying every minute of it, and hoping you do, too!

THE G.A. COMMITTEE

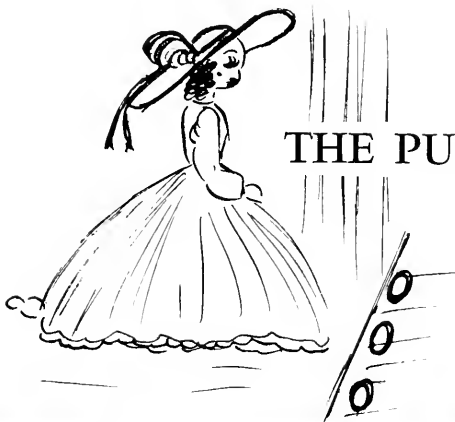

Chairman: VIRGINIA JACOBS

G.A. Committee Members are selected by the Committee with regard to their interest in school activities and their ability to contribute to assembly programs. After nomination by the Committee, candidates must receive the approval of Father FitzGibbon.

The G.A. Committee composes a schedule for the assembly meetings throughout the term. The Committee in action assigns dates to different departments and clubs, and they in turn make up a program to be presented on that date. All programs are planned with regard to the preferences of the student body. Miss Shea, Sister John Baptist and Sister Joan de Lourdes act as advisors and the programs are evaluated for their cultural and entertainment value. The high calibre of our assembly programs illustrates the fine work of this Committee.

THE PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

Chairman: MARY KRUSE

Hear ye! Hear ye!

Need a loudspeaker to broadcast your club's strictly special "shindigs" and weekly caucuses? Get in touch with the Publicity Committee and bring your organization into the limelight.

By directing all publicity through one central channel, its members hope to both incite the undergraduate's interest and increase attendance at the various club functions.

In addition to a Typing Staff, the Committee boasts of an Art Staff, which makes posters to be displayed on the recently acquired closed bulletin boards. Both staffs work in close cooperation with the club chairman and Miss Toomey, the Publicity Director of the College.

By means of the Publicity Committee we hope to have a concrete force for promotion to abstract qualities—both necessary to "School Spirit"—Enthusiasm and Eagerness.

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

President: MARGUERITE FENTON
Secretary: BARBARA HAWKE

About one hundred and fifty loyal members have meetings once a month. Each class has an A.A. representative with Joan McAneny representing the Seniors, Joan Williams the Juniors and Margaret Cantwell the Sophomores. Under the A.A. come the varsity, bowling, social dancing, cheerleaders and class teams. The Big Event of the year occurs on Sports Day which takes place the Saturday before Commencement Week. Feature attractions are box lunches and faculty-students' softball game. Names of winners at Field Day are engraved on a plaque and hung in the "rec." The Sports Hop, strictly informal, adds the finishing touches to the events of the day. Other successful dances are held after some of the home basketball games. Few people graduate from Saint Joseph's without coming under this far reaching organization at some time.

CHEER LEADERS

Four cuties are these cheer leaders: Pat Henry, Evelyn Turck, Pat Kermath, Julie Dupins with each class represented. Snappy yellow and white outfits, saddle-shoes, polished no less, present a cheerful picture at all of the games. These lucky "critters" get in on all the varsity get-togethers; even sharing the orange slices at the games plus the best seats. The girls, chosen by competition, compose cheers and rehearse for some spirited action.

THE VARSITY

Captain: HELEN CONNELL
Coach: MISS WILLIAMS

These thirteen polished players brag of one leftie forward and an ambidextrous guard. They practice three times a week perfecting their aim during free hours also. They beat all but one team last year ... no wonder the Varsity has a post season weekend. Grace Arnone arranges games as manager, Pearl Russo assures school support as publicity manager. Many of the girls taught at summer schools and playgrounds during the vacation season. Everyone agrees that these girls justly merit our pride and support.

Social Whirl

Oh! you didn't say cheese.

Whose date is she?

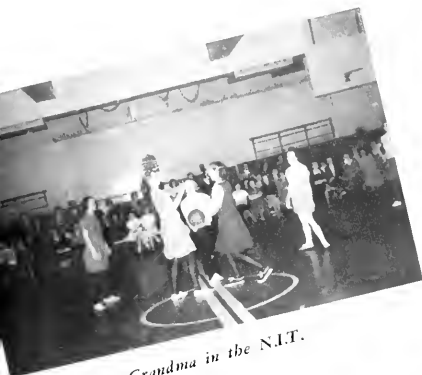

JUNIOR . . . Chamber of Commerce.

Why not stay a while?

Conover should have been here.

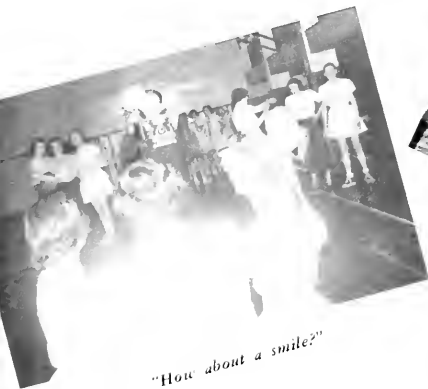

Grandma in the N.I.T.

"I'm telling you coach, that team—"

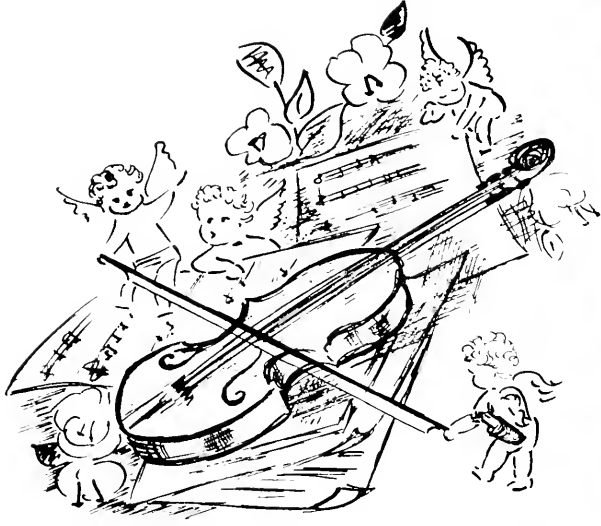

And A.T.T. went up two points!

"How about a smile?"

Cash on the line—Gerry's always there.

Executive's luncheon.

"Honey Bun" and her new outfit!

Pond's does everything!

"Look Ma, I'm ..."
